

Siduri is the Babylonian goddess of wine – the keeper of the wine of eternal life. Siduri is also the realised goal of two wine lovers; Dianna and Adam Lee, from Texas.

Buoyed by the belief that we could become winemakers and make our own Pinot Noir, we left our families and jobs in Texas and moved to California's Sonoma wine country. We spent several years working at small, family owned wineries, using any and all free time to learn everything we could about growing grapes and making wine.

In 1994 we launched Siduri Wines with our first release, which was met with great critical success and led us to search for additional high quality Pinot Noir grapes.

Today, Siduri produces single vineyard Pinot Noir from 20 different vineyards stretching from Santa Barbara north to Oregon's Willamette Valley. We have been fortunate enough to establish relationships with top tier growers/vineyards including: Pisoni, Van der Kamp and Clos Pepe .

Siduri

Siduri's winemaking goal is to produce Pinot Noir that best captures the distinct flavour and character of a given vineyard site. To that end, they focus only on Pinot Noir (Siduri makes no other varietals) and only from sites that provide exceptional fruit. The self taught winemakers produce single vineyard Pinot Noir from the most acclaimed growers and vineyard sites in California and Oregon. They are fanatical in the protection of the vineyard flavour and are determined not to let any overt winemaking components mute the personality of an individual site.

Given that the majority of the wines are single vineyard offerings, it is critical to maintain the site's individual character in order to provide a truly diverse offering of wines.

In the cellar, they vinify each wine separately by block, clone and barrel type in order to maximize the individual components and provide greater complexity to the final blend. This approach also provides much more flexibility in crafting a wine using only the best and most harmonious lots.

They believe in minimal intervention, 'gentle' winemaking. In other words, letting the wine make itself. They do not want to do anything to the wine that isn't absolutely necessary.

To date, they have never filtered or fined any wine, believing that, more often than not, these procedures strip wines of flavour and character.

They believe that the best Pinot Noir expresses its origins. Their goal is not to produce the world's best Pinot Noir but rather to produce the very best Pinot Noir from a given site.
